

Birds Quiz: 20 Trivia Questions. Guess What Kind of Bird Is in the Picture!

1. This bird, which lives on the shores of the Arctic and Atlantic Oceans, nests in burrows and feeds on fish and sandflies.

- Tit
- Atlantic puffin
- Lorikeet

2. This duck with its heavy flight rather resembles geese. During the nesting period, males have a dark ring on their neck.

- Ruddy shelduck

- Teal
- Mallard

3. These birds got their name for their cry that resembles a human laugh.

- Laughing falcon
- Laughing kookaburra
- Laughing owl

4. This small bird about the size of a sparrow feeds on small fish, which it ambushes while sitting on branches above the water.

- Kingfisher
- Oriole
- Cockatoo

5. This bird is a raptor, catching prey as it roams the African savanna.

- Southern ground hornbill
- Toko
- Forest wood hoopoe

6. This bird was on the verge of extinction because of its beautiful feathers, which were used by fashion designers to adorn clothing.

- Pink gull
- Roseate spoonbill
- Holy ibis

7. This pet bird has been bred by man since ancient times not only for meat and feathers. The ancient Greeks kept them as sacred birds dedicated to Persephone and Priapus.

- Goose.
- Swan
- Pelican

8. This bird is endemic to New Guinea, inhabiting its northern part and the adjacent islands of Biak and Yapen.

- Peacock

- Crowned lapwing
- Victoria crowned pigeon

9. These large seabirds are excellent divers, diving from great heights for fish several meters deep.

- Albatross
- Northern gannet
- Northern storm petrel

10. In these migratory birds, both males and females sing, but the repertoire of females is poorer than that of males.

- Tit
- Bullfinch
- Robin

11. In ancient times this bird was a favorite target of falconers, despite the fact that its edible meat is completely tasteless.

- Gray heron
- Stork
- Crowned crane

12. In 2002, a genetic analysis was conducted, which determined that this rare bird is the closest relative of the extinct dodo.

- Nicobar pigeon
- Pheasant pigeon
- Streptopelia

13. This bird has sharp teeth on its beak, which are a device for holding slippery fish.

- Common merganser
- Common shelduck
- Mandarin duck

14. This large bird has eyes at the front of its skull, which allows it to have binocular vision.

- Frigatebird

- Shoebill
- Phalacrocorax

15. These birds are found in Tasmania, Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea. They are not afraid of people, so they are often found in city parks.

- Ostrich.
- Secretarybird
- Masked lapwing

16. This bird served as the prototype for Raphael, one of the characters in the Disney cartoon "Rio".

- Atlantic puffin
- Toucan
- Pelecan

17. The body length of this bird reaches 1.5 m. With its impressive size and colorful plumage, it is part of the rituals of the peoples living in its range.

- Penguin
- Pelican
- Great hornbill

18. A constellation in the southern hemisphere of the celestial sphere is named after this bird.

- Guinea fowl
- Pheasant
- Peacock

19. This large parrot is a resident of the rainforest. Birds of this species do not gather in flocks and lead solitary or paired lifestyles.

- Cockatoo
- Ara
- Amazon

20. The male and female of these birds, which live in northern South America, look the same. They live in large flocks of several hundred congeners.

- Flamingos

- Ibis
- Crane

Birds Quiz: 20 Trivia Questions. Guess What Kind of Bird Is in the Picture!

Right answers

1. This bird, which lives on the shores of the Arctic and Atlantic Oceans, nests in burrows and feeds on fish and sandflies.

Atlantic puffin

2. This duck with its heavy flight rather resembles geese. During the nesting period, males have a dark ring on their neck.

Ruddy shelduck

3. These birds got their name for their cry that resembles a human laugh.

Laughing kookaburra

4. This small bird about the size of a sparrow feeds on small fish, which it ambushes while sitting on branches above the water.

Kingfisher

5. This bird is a raptor, catching prey as it roams the African savanna.

Southern ground hornbill

6. This bird was on the verge of extinction because of its beautiful feathers, which were used by fashion designers to adorn clothing.

Roseate spoonbill

7. This pet bird has been bred by man since ancient times not only for meat and feathers. The ancient Greeks kept them as sacred birds dedicated to Persephone and Priapus.

Goose.

8. This bird is endemic to New Guinea, inhabiting its northern part and the adjacent islands of Biak and Yapen.

Victoria crowned pigeon

9. These large seabirds are excellent divers, diving from great heights for fish several meters deep.

Northern gannet

10. In these migratory birds, both males and females sing, but the repertoire of females is poorer than that of males.

Robin

11. In ancient times this bird was a favorite target of falconers, despite the fact that its edible meat is completely tasteless.

Gray heron

12. In 2002, a genetic analysis was conducted, which determined that this rare bird is the closest relative of the extinct dodo.

Nicobar pigeon

13. This bird has sharp teeth on its beak, which are a device for holding slippery fish.

Common merganser

14. This large bird has eyes at the front of its skull, which allows it to have binocular vision.

Shoebill

15. These birds are found in Tasmania, Australia, New Zealand and New Guinea. They are not afraid of people, so they are often found in city parks.

Masked lapwing

16. This bird served as the prototype for Raphael, one of the characters in the Disney cartoon "Rio".

Toucan

17. The body length of this bird reaches 1.5 m. With its impressive size and colorful plumage, it is part of the rituals of the peoples living in its range.

Great hornbill

18. A constellation in the southern hemisphere of the celestial sphere is named after this bird.

Peacock

19. This large parrot is a resident of the rainforest. Birds of this species do not gather in flocks and lead solitary or paired lifestyles.

Ara

20. The male and female of these birds, which live in northern South America, look the same. They live in large flocks of several hundred congeners.

Ibis